Detailed Project Description and Justification:

Regional emergency response teams are called to respond to disasters regionally on average of two times per year. Currently there is not a regional emergency disaster cache in the Norton Sound Region. These disaster packs would be on shrink wrapped pallets of 12 packs per pallet. These pallets are designed to be "push pak" type of response supplies and could be deployed rapidly to any location, not only in the Norton Sound Region, but in western Alaska as well. There will be 4 pallets pre-positioned in Nome and 2 pallets pre-positioned in Unalakleet.
